

FINDING A FIT WITH YOUNG REMBRANDTS

Don Eisenhauer came to Young Rembrandts with an impressive military and professional work history.

After being downsized in his previous career as a civil engineer Eisenhauer was able to take the time to consider “what’s next”. Don worked with a franchise broker and examined several options of possible businesses that fit his skill set but appealed to his more adventurous side. Thankfully enough, Young Rembrandts was one of these options and he was a perfect fit from the beginning.

Don purchased the Young Rembrandts territory available in the Metro-Milwaukee area of Wisconsin in late 2011. Since then he has shown stellar growth during his inaugural year in the system. “Don’s positivity is contagious,” says Bette Fetter, Founder and CEO of Young Rembrandts Franchise. “His ability to strategically grow his business is something to be admired, but the passion he has for Young Rembrandts and for the students his business impacts, that is what really gets me.”

Eisenhauer continues to impress everyone with his aggressive sales and marketing strategies, outstanding networking skills and extreme passion for Young Rembrandts. In addition to leading other first-year Franchisees in revenue and exceeding required benchmarks; Don works continuously with the Home Office team to build a successful and profitable business. “I love this business,” said Eisenhauer, “I love what I do and I am so thankful for this opportunity to make an impact in the lives of children.”

Don’s military background:

Marine Corps reserve 1982-1988

**Honorable Discharge**

Don’s words on how military experience impacts owning a business:

“Discipline is huge, if it wasn’t for that it would be very hard... You have to be self-motivated and disciplined to get out there every day and push yourself.”

Don’s advice to unemployed Veterans:

“Give it (Franchising) as much consideration as you do a normal job.”
